

DOCTORS' COMMITMENT

Members of Cardiovascular Associates of the Delaware Valley (CADV) recently purchased personal automated external defibrillators (AED) and offered free instruction on the use of the devices, including CPR and home defibrillator training, at the Cherry Hill Library. Pictured with the equipment are CADV members and physicians (front, from left) Sanford Gips of Moorestown, George Kaddissi of Moorestown, (second row, from left) Mark Gelernt of Moorestown, Richard Dickstein of Medford and (back, from left) Kartik Giri of Moorestown, Vijay Verma of Mount Laurel and Jeffrey Leavy of Moorestown. The purchase is part of the CADV's Save a Life Initiative (SALI) in Southern New Jersey and Philadelphia, which emphasizes community outreach and public education on the topics of sudden cardiac death and available therapies.